Paragraphs Picked Up Here and There Throughout the State.

In the face of an opportunity to go to the First Methodist Church, Shreveport, La., which has 1,200 members and pays a salary of $4,000 a year, in addition to a parsonage, Rev. William E. Thompson, D. D., will accept the appointment to Park Place Church, Richmond, and will take up his residence there on Wednesday. He succeeds Rev. J. J. Bradford, who has just completed a pastorate of four years at Park Place.

George S. Crockett, a prosperous farmer of Accomac; his daughter, Mrs. Johnson, and her two children driving in an automobile, were struck Saturday at a crossing near Onley, by a northbound express train. Mrs. Johnson and one child were killed and the other child seriously injured. Mr. Crockett suffered fractures at the base of his skull and of one leg. Slight hopes are held out for his recovery.

The recent freeze in Rockingham was the coldest November weather experienced in that county for many years. In the Cherry Grove neighborhood more than 100 bushels of winter apples were frozen on the trees and entirely ruined. Fortunately, however, nearly all of Rockingham's great apple crop had been gathered and marketed before the cold wave came up the Valley.

The most destructive fire in the history of Shenandoah, a railroad town in the southern part of Page county, occurred Saturday. Property belonging to the Norfolk and Western Railroad amounting to thousands of dollars was destroyed. This included the company's machine shops and roundhouse. Large numbers of men will be thrown out of employment. When discovered the fire had made great headway and the fire company was hampered by the absence of fire plugs in that part of the town.

Lewis Harvie Blair, soldier, writer, philosopher and constructionist died at his home in Richmond yesterday morning of the eighty-third year of his age. Mr. Blair was a descendant of Rev. John D. Blair, better known in his time as "Parson Blair," and Mary Winston, ad descendant of Isaac Winston, the colonist, who came from Yorkshire, England, in 1704, and settled near Richmond.

N. R. Herndon was found dead in bed with a bullet hole in his head and a revolver lying beside him on Saturday morning at the home of his cousin, A. C. Herndon, at Bellview. Mr. Herndon, who had been on a short business trip to Washington, reached his cousin's home on Friday afternoon. He retired to his room about 7:30 o'clock, giving no intimation that he contemplated self-destruction.

A man, probably 70 years old, believed from a letter found in his pocket to be Walter Gorbart, of Norfolk, was early yesterday morning found dead in a room at 722 8th street, N. W., Washington, which he had rented Saturday night for one night.

It is reliably reported in British circles in Norfolk that the German merchant submarine Deutschland, now on her way to Bremen, was picked up 300 miles off the coast of New England by a fighting submarine. Although at least five allied warships, had been searching for this U-boat for at least five days before the Deutschland left New London, their efforts have failed. It is supposed that for fear of making known her whereabouts, the fighting craft has made no attempt to sink any allied ships on this coast.

Isaac Newton Kite, aged 40, committed suicide near his home in Marksville, district, Page county, late Saturday by shooting himself in the head. Kite was a man of family and no cause can be assigned for the tragedy. His domestic relations are said to have been pleasant.

George Corvin, who lived near Wytheville, was killed near Ivanhoe Saturday. He was employed on the bridge construction force of the Norfolk and Western Railway. A piece of timber fell from the bridge, striking him in the head, killing him instantly.

FLIGHT OF ARETHUSA.

Mythological Origin of a Favorite British Warship Name.

From the days of Drake "Arctus" has always been the favorite name of a swift, light cruiser in the British navy. A corvet named Arethusa took part in the battle of Cape St. Vincent on Feb. 14, 1797, when Nelson, then under Jervis, defeated the Spanish fleet, and this Arethusa was henceforth with the great admiral down to his last battle at Trafalgar eight years later.

As Arethusas have succeeded one another in the British navy, legends have gathered around the name until the ship so named has seemed to symbolize the mythological origin of the term.

There is in Peloponnesus a river called Morea. In ancient times, it is said, it was presided over by a river god named Alpheus. Alpheus fell in love with the river nymph, Arethusa, and pursued her through the water, Diana, hearing her cries of distress, opened a passage for the stream so that it flowed under the sea to Sicily, where, near Syracuse, Arethusa disappeared in the spray of a beautiful fountain.

The river, untainted by the sea, still flows underground to the fountain, and Alpheus is still said to be searching for the nymph, but never finds her. This is why her naval namesakes have eluded the enemy through all the centuries and have been believed by the superstitious to be invulnerable.—New York Times.

Odor of Sanctity.

The sexton of a suburban church has many stories to tell of the comments made by visitors.

On the occasion of a festival, when the church was beautifully decorated with evergreens and flowers an old lady walked up the aisle to the chancel and stood sniffing the air after every one had left the church.

"Don't it smell solemn?" she said at last to the sexton, as she turned away with evident reluctance.

"I don't know as I ever realized just what the 'odor of sanctity' meant before today."—Chicago Herald.

Cigars a Century Ago.

The war of 1814 brought the cigar to Paris with the English. Shortly after Waterloo, says the Springfield Republican, Roger de Beauvoir declared: "The cigar is the last word of dandyism, the final detail by which the finished gentleman of our time may be identified. It is at the same time the supreme elegance and the supreme insolence of our generation. One cannot too highly recommend to would-be lions to use it and even to abuse it."

Domestic Dilemma.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "would you enlist if your country called you?"

"I don't know what to say. If I answer 'No,' you'll say I don't love my country, and if I answer 'Yes' you'll say I don't like to stay at home."—Washington Star.

Doing His Best.

Small Boy (at depot)—Want your suit case carried, mister? Traveler—Why, my boy, you are too little to carry a heavy suit case. Small Boy—I know it, sir, but I thought perhaps you would give me a nickel for offering to carry it.—Chicago News.

Patience.
